Northwest Engineer Encourages Formation of Projects in Utah

SALT LAKE, Aug. 6.—L. J. Lytel, project engineer for the Yakima reclamation service project, in Washington, today urged immediate organization of irrigation districts in the eight counties served by waters from the Utah Water Storage association yesterday.

Mr. Lytel is well known in Utah as the project engineer and later the project manager of the Strawberry reclamation service project, which is serving water to Utah counties. He is a member of the executive committee of the Utah Water Storage association, which is an organization of the eight counties concerned with Lake, Utah, Wasatch, Morgan, Summit, Wasatch and Tooele.

ADDITIONAL DISTRICTS. A. F. Parker, chief engineer of the association, recently recommended the organization of eight irrigation districts in addition to the four in this territory now being organized under the Utah irrigation law. The Bonneville district recently voted a $600,000 bond issue for its district, planning to pump water from the Jordan river. The remainder of Davis county and in addition Weber county and Morgan county, are now in process of organizing as irrigation districts. Mr. Parker recommended also that Tooele, Wasatch and Summit counties each form a district, and that three be organized in Utah county and two in Salt Lake county. Those in this county would be divided by the Jordan river, while the Jordan and Utah lake would divide two of those in Utah county, and a third would be organized in Cedar valley, which, being without surface outlet, presents a problem all its own.

ACTION URGED. Mr. Lytel, who is thoroughly familiar with the irrigation problems of the entire district, is heartily in favor of the organization of these districts at this time. He urges immediate action in order that the districts may be in shape to present proper data to the next legislature that a state reclamation service may be formed, similar to that which is now doing effective work in Washington. Mr. Lytel's letter addressed to the acting secretary of the Water Storage association says:

"I have yours of recent date, transmitting copy of Mr. A. F. Parker's report to the members of the executive board, and wish to state that I believe the formation of irrigation districts as outlined in this report is one of the important preliminary steps looking toward a complete survey of the resources of the state of Utah from an agricultural and irrigation standpoint.

"If these districts could be formed at an early date, and are ready to do business before the legislature meets, they could materially assist in securing the passage of a state reclamation act similar to the one now in force in the state of Washington.

"For the information of the association, I am enclosing three copies of the state reclamation act and land settlement act of Washington. It appears to me that the state of Utah, for the state of Utah would be an excellent thing, and I suggest that a committee from the Utah Water Storage association take up the matter of studying this law, and drafting one applicable to the conditions in Utah for presentation to the legislature this coming winter.

"The Washington state reclamation service is doing a considerable amount of work and I am looking for some good results.

"It appears to me that the proper way to secure data on the water and land resources of the state is through some state commission, as in that way the entire state bears the expense for work that is of great benefit to the public in general.

"The last Utah legislature did some good work in the way of revising the irrigation and drainage district laws, and I trust the next one can see its way clear to pass a state reclamation act."

Germany Will Resist Movement of Entente Troops Through Her Territory

LONDON, Aug. 6.—The contingency of Germany having to fight to resist a possible attempt by the entente to send troops through Germany to help Poland was mentioned in the reichstag today by Dr. Walter Simons, the foreign secretary, says a wireless message from Berlin.

Declaring he was not aware whether the entente actually intended to march troops through Germany, he said it would obviously be to their interest to do so and the German government must take measures accordingly.

Dr. Simons referred to the report that preparations were in progress in occupied territory to transfer troops to the east.

"If this is true," he declared, "it constitutes a violation of German neutrality, for the territory although occupied is German and the agreement provides that no district belonging to a neutral power may be used for military operations.

"The German government will make use of any weapons in order to remove these difficulties," continued Dr. Simons, "although we hope it will be possible to achieve the end desired by persuasion and mutual understanding and that cause for the use of arms will not arise.

"I ask you to avoid anything which might render more acute the already strained situation, which I will do my utmost to prevent from resulting in an outbreak."
